

Lost Things
– An Urban Memory

The aim of this project has been to investigate the matter of memory and its relationship to light, space and time. To collect and organize the unfathomable diversity that the world is made up of, represented through forgotten objects.

My design proposal consists of three parts; a tower a bunker and an in-between space, connecting the tower and the bunker.

Presently the bunker is threatened with demolition. Instead I suggest a transformation of the bunker into an archive for lost things, creating a parallel underground world that reflects the society above.

Above ground I propose a repository for all the lost things in Berlin.
